

| TEMPORADA 2018 SEA RUN BROWN TROUT |

Sea Run Brown Trout

The first brown trout were planted by John Goodall in 1935. The first shipment of 60,000 roe of "Salmo Trutta" came from Puerto Montt, Chile. They survived the trip and were "planted" in the Candelaria and McLennan rivers, both tributaries of the Rio Grande. These trout found their way to the sea, possibly because of the harsh conditions of the rivers during the winter. At present, these "sea-run brown trout" transformed into anadromous, perform the same life cycle as salmon, making their annual spawning migration during the summer months. The small trout remain in the river for period of one to four years until their first migration to the sea, where they grow rapidly thanks to the abundance of food and suitable water temperature. Then towards the end of spring, they return to the rivers where they were born, repeating this cycle up to six times.

A Seatrout that has been spawning four times can weigh more than 9 kg. In recent years as a result of strict control, the average catch of Rio Grande has increased in a remarkable way.

| FISHING RIO GRANDE |

Aurelia Lodge has 15,000 hectares of land, which include 14 km of the Rio Grande and more than 25 km of the Rio Menendez. Aurelia Lodge has been licensed by the government of Tierra del Fuego to operate as "Aurelia Coto Fishing Lodge". By law the number of fishing lodges authorized to operate in the Rio Grande have been limited to those who until now have the license granted. As a result of this legislation Aurelia Lodge has exclusive fishing rights on both banks of these two rivers .

These rivers provide numerous places and pools to delight the fly fisherman.

The catch and release is mandatory !

Aurelia Lodge is located approximately 1.15 h from the Airport of Rio Grande, on the island of Tierra del Fuego, Argentina. Aurelia Lodge was built refurbishing the main house of Estancia Rosita, improving the existing building without losing the charm of traditional Patagonian estancia .

Equipment: Rods: Single handed rods: - 8½ to 10 feet, line 8 is ideal. Double handed rods: 13 to 15 feet for lines 8 to 10 will cast more comfortable, especially during the very windy days. Reel: We recommend a strong reel with disc brake and with a minimum capacity of 150 yards of 20-pound backing.

Lines: It is recommended to have 3 or 4 lines that suit different water levels and prevailing wind. Floating weight forward lines are generally used, but intermediate lines are also very effective. Floating lines are used when the water is low or in the morning or late evening when the trout swim near the surface. For double handed rods short shooting heads are the most recommended, Salmologic products have been specifically developed and designed for fishing in these waters. Skagit lines and traditional weight forward lines are often used with various sinking tips from sinking 3 to T14 and 17.

Leaders / Tippet: Spools of tippet of 30, 20 and 15 pounds. Maxima or suggest Salmologic for use with sinking lines and floating, leaders from 9 to 12 feet with 0x tippet of the same companies.
